INSTRUCTION

Training the Personal Protection Specialist

Jason Wuestenberg

Phoenix Arizona Police Department – Firearms Training Unit

This 8-hour course is designed to help firearms instructors develop a firearms training program for Executive / Dignitary Protection teams, or any unit tasked with providing protective services. Even if you are not tasked with training any protective service unit, this is still a fun advanced handgun course to attend and a good experience for any firearms instructor. This course covers the following topics: Drawing from various concealment holsters, Basic team development drills, Engaging multiple targets, Basic concept to protective services, Solo protection drills, Two-man protection team drills, Five-man protection team drills, Live-fire Principle extraction drills, Incorporating extraction vehicles into live-fire drills

Instructor – Ofc. Jason Wuestenberg has been a Phoenix Police officer since 1994. He has been assigned to the Firearms Training Unit at the Arizona Law Enforcement Academy (ALEA) since May 2000. Jason holds numerous instructor certifications, which include handgun, shotgun, patrol rifle, and precision rifle.

Bring: Duty handgun with three magazines, 300 rounds of handgun ammo, Belt holster & magazine pouches, Shoulder holster (optional), Long button-up cover shirt or light jacket (for concealment), Ballistic vest, Standard IALEFI range safety gear

Patrol Shotgun Development

Chas Clements

Phoenix Arizona Police Department – Firearms Training Unit

The pump-action shotgun is the most complex and dangerous weapon system patrol officers have, and often the shotgun's capabilities are misunderstood. The shotgun uses different types of ammunition and the operator must be proficient in all the different types of manipulations, making the shotgun more difficult to master than the handgun and rifle. However, when the shotgun is in the hands of a proficient operator it can be a very useful tool in patrol. The 8-hour course will cover instructional techniques for empty gun loading, tactical loading, transition to handgun, slug round capabilities, buckshot capabilities, buckshot spread pattern test, various select round drills, and shooting while moving.

Instructor – Chas Clements has been a Phoenix Police Officer since 1995. Chas has been a full-time Firearms Instructor assigned to the Firearms Training Unit at the Arizona Law Enforcement Academy (ALEA) since March 2001. Chas' experience with the shotgun began in the police academy. Since then Chas has been a shotgun operator in his various assignments within the Phoenix Police Department. Chas has also attended his department's Special Assignment Unit (SWAT) shotgun certification course. Chas is one of the lead shotgun instructors for the Phoenix Police Department and a certified Remington armorer.

Bring: Duty shotgun, Duty belt, Duty handgun w/ magazines, Body armor (optional but highly recommended), 80 rounds of buckshot, 30 rounds of slug, 100 rounds of birdshot, 100 rounds of handgun ammunition

Close Quarters Shooting

Sgt. Michial Dunlap

Amarillo, Texas Police Department

Every police officers knows that in our job, we must get up close and personal with real and dangerous people. This goes against everything we are taught about survival in combat situations. Still we cannot keep the distance most of us want to be safe. That is why we need to be able to shoot fast and accurately in close quarters. This course will show shooters how to draw, mount, and fire the weapon in very close situations and how to survive deadly encounters in the street distances we encounter in real life.

Instructor – Sgt. Michial Dunlap is a 27 year veteran of the Amarillo Police Department where he has been the range master and lead firearms instructor for the past 13 years. Michial has taught at several IALEFI® Annual Training Conferences, Regional Training Conferences, and an ASLET Regional Training Conference. Michial was the guest of the Brazilian Government 3 times to teach firearms and police tactics to the local, state, and federal officers. Michial serves as the Secretary of IALEFI® and is also the Training Coordinator.

Bring: Duty leather gear, duty weapon, 500 rounds ammo and soft body armor is recommended.
