Prevailing in Reduced Light Conditions: Patrol Rifle

Many law enforcement officers are afforded limited opportunity to train in reduced light environments. Considering that most police shootings have historically occurred in less than optimum light, this situation is less than satisfactory. This block of instruction will explore the use of the patrol rifle as a reduced light fighting tool. Techniques which maximize the operators ability to hit under adverse conditions will be addressed.

Instructor: Capt. Boyle is the Training Administrator for the New Jersey Division of Fish & Wildlife, Bureau of Law Enforcement and an instructor with the Streamlight Academy. He is also a police academy instructor and Rangemaster and the author of over 300 published articles, including several on the subject of reduced light shooting. Mike serves on the IALEFI® Board of Directors where he chairs the Regional Training Committee.

Student requirements: Rifle with sling, spare magazines, 200 rounds of rifle ammunition, pistol with 50 rounds of ammunition, hand held flashlight, weapon mounted light if available.

Test Protocol – Rifle Ammunition

Students will have the opportunity to test various types of rifle ammunition in accordance with protocol established by the FBI. Ammunition will be fired into calibrated ballistic gelatin and through barriers common in actual police shootings.

Instructor: This course will be presented by representatives of ATK. (Formerly BLOUNT, Inc)

Student requirements: Pen/pencil notebook. Students are encouraged to bring any rifle ammunition they want to evaluate.
