Presents

A Regional Training Conference

April 5 - 6, 2003

Phoenix Police Department – Arizona Law Enforcement Academy

Phoenix, Arizona

INSTRUCTION

Shoot House Instructor Development

Live-fire shoot house training is the most dangerous firearms training an officer, or Firearms Instructor, can experience, yet very few training entities offer a Shoot house Instructor Development program. This 8-hour course will cover critical aspects for conducting dry-fire and live-fire training in a shoot house environment. Students will learn operational policies, conducting safety checks, setting up multi-room drills, student preparation, instructor positioning, student control techniques, discuss Patrol level vs. SWAT level training, and discuss basic CQB tactics.

Instructor: Jason Wuestenberg has been a Phoenix Police Officer since 1994. Jason has been a full-time Firearms Instructor assigned to the Firearms Training Unit at the Arizona Law Enforcement Academy (ALEA) since May 2000. Jason's experience with shoot houses started in the military in 1993 and has extended into law enforcement training over the past several years. Jason is a graduate of the Heckler & Koch Shoot House Instructor Development course and is the lead Shoot house Instructor for his unit.*

Student requirements: Duty belt, duty handgun w/ magazines, body armor (mandatory), and 100 rounds of frangible ammunition.

Close Quarters Patrol Rifle

We train how to shoot at close quarters with hand guns, but not with rifles. As more and more departments add rifles to our street officers arsenal, we need to prepare them both physically and mentally to engage and win deadly encounters at close quarters with the rifle. This course will demonstrate several techniques and drills to accomplish this mission.

Instructor: Cpl. Jimmy Johnson is a 15 yearn veteran of the Amarillo Police Department. He a department firearms instructor, rifle instructor, and is on the dive team. Jimmy has instructed at several IALEFI® Regional Conferences.*

Student requirements: Duty rifle, duty handgun, duty leather gear, 50 rounds handgun ammo, and 300 rounds rifle ammo.

Patrol Shotgun Development

The pump-action shotgun is the most complex and dangerous weapon system patrol officers have, and often the shotgun's capabilities are misunderstood. The shotgun uses different types of ammunition and the operator must be proficient in all the different types of manipulations, making the shotgun more difficult to master than the handgun and rifle. However, when the shotgun is in the hands of a proficient operator it can be a very useful tool in patrol. The 4-hour course will cover instructional techniques for empty gun loading, tactical loading, transition to handgun, slug round capabilities, buckshot capabilities, buckshot spread pattern test, various select round drills, and shooting while moving.

Instructor: Chas Clements has been a Phoenix Police Officer since 1995. Chas has been a full-time Firearms Instructor assigned to the Firearms Training Unit at the Arizona Law Enforcement Academy (ALEA) since March 2001. Chas' experience with the shotgun began in the police academy. Since then Chas has been a shotgun operator in his various assignments within the Phoenix Police Department. Chas has also attended his department's Special Assignment Unit (SWAT) shotgun certification course. Chas is one of the lead shotgun instructors for the Phoenix Police Department and a certified Remington armorer.

Student requirements: Duty shotgun (shotguns are available to borrow at the class), Duty belt, Duty handgun w/ magazines, Body armor (optional but highly recommended), 40 rounds of buckshot, 30 rounds of slug, 50 rounds of birdshot.
